Quiz 3

Q) Difference between Solicited and Unsolicited Reports.

Solicited Reports:

Solicited reports means those Reports that are derived from organized data collection systems, Solicited reports Use for the purpose of Safety Reporting and Study reports. A solicited report provides you with a description of what the customer wants.

Unsolicited Reports:

Solicited report. Received without request (does not derive from trials or investigations). Received as a result of targeted data collection and are also known as INFORMATION SOURCES. They are general and not directly connected with a specific customer's needs. Typically, they are used to promote new products and services. Unsolicited reports has a risk that customer can read it or not.
